

Waking Up a Dependent

- In an in-order pipeline, an instruction leaves the decode stage when it is known that the inputs can be correctly received, not when the inputs are computed

- Similarly, an instruction leaves the issue queue before its inputs are known, i.e., wakeup is speculative based on the expected latency of the producer instruction

